

The McKenzie River Light Quilt

McKenzie teens produced a stained glass triptych “light quilt” highlighting the natural history of the McKenzie landscape. The artwork was created from July 7-August 7, 2003 by artists Gila and Tim Fox and four McKenzie teens after studying the landscape and meeting with resource specialists. It was unveiled in October 2003 at the Horse Creek Work Center and will be housed at the H.J. Andrews Experimental Forest. The project, developed by Youth Arts, a program of Lane Arts Council, teaches teens about public art and the environment. The project is a partnership with the McKenzie Arts Forum, McKenzie Watershed Council, McKenzie School District, and the McKenzie River Ranger District.
